3. References

Scientific papers use APA (American Psychological Association) format.

In contrast, you may have used MLA (Modern Language Association) format in Humanities courses.

Differences: <https://www.scribbr.com/citing-sources/apa-vs-mla/>

Note that in-text quotations of other references are common in Humanities, but are not customary in scientific writing.

3. References

In-Text citations:

Cite in-text to:

- Give credit to ideas that precede your study
- Add credibility (you're not making things up!)
- Allow the reader to learn more

Always include the authors and year:

1. One author: Moua (2019)
2. Two authors: Moua and Clawson (2019)
3. Three or more authors: Moua et al. (2019)
 - et al. is Latin for “and others”. Notice it is lowercase with period after “al”. This is an abbreviation for “alia” meaning others.

How to list references:

Some journals order references in alphabetical order by last name of the first author.

Shark finning is worse now than ever before (Esperanza et al. 2001; Jacoby and Meyers, 2021).

Other journals list by order of appearance in text.

Shark finning is worse now than ever before [1,2].

What do we do in this class?

In this class, you will have in-text citations and a reference list in your research paper.

Let's use the format from the Journal of Fish Biology.

See the Author Guidelines or a recent article in this journal: <https://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/page/journal/10958649/homepage/forauthors.html>

3.1.10 References

All published citations mentioned in the text, tables or figures must be listed in the reference list, which includes all key elements of each reference, including the names of journals in full (not abbreviated). Authors are responsible for checking the accuracy of their references. Manuscript submissions are not required to use JFB reference formatting until the article is provisionally accepted. Corrections may be made during the publication process. A manuscript title must appear exactly as in the original publication. JFB uses APA style referencing with some minor style changes. Examples of JFB reference content requirements are shown below.

Journal Article:

Flowers, K. I., Henderson, A. C., Lupton, J. L., & Chapman, D. D. (2017). Site affinity of whitespotted eagle rays Aetobatus narinari assessed using photographic identification. Journal of Fish Biology, 91, 1337– 1349

Assignments for today and for home

In class:

Continue to download data for your research project and write your Introduction.

Everyone should aim to have an data file (FORMAT?? PROGRAM??) to analyze on MONDAY.

At home:

Submit by Friday 12 pm: What you have so far of your Introduction. Peer reviews will be assigned Saturday and due Wednesday!

Any writing should be in Word so I can use Track Changes. Name the file “yourname_introduction_thedate.doc”
